

Spirit Awards Social Media Intern Opportunity

The Film Independent Spirit Awards team is looking for a Social Media Intern to assist with this year's online marketing strategy. Applicants should be highly motivated students or recent graduates interested in gaining social media marketing skills in a non-profit, event production environment. Candidates must be creative, resourceful, proactive and have established an active social media presence.

This position presents opportunities to learn best practices for communicating via social media across a variety of platforms, create content calendars, research new marketing strategies, understand how to monitor and analyze campaigns and more. Strong writing and interpersonal skills are required as well as the ability to present ideas with clarity and precision and be comfortable and proficient working with social media platforms like Twitter, Facebook, Pinterest and Instagram. Working knowledge of Photoshop is a plus.

The Spirit Awards celebrate artist-driven filmmaking and recognize the finest achievements of today's independent filmmakers. Applicants should have a strong interest in the independent film community and awareness of key players and influencers.

Resumes and cover letters may be sent to Jasmine Teran, Online Community Manager at jteran@filmindependent.org